

BERNIE'S BOOK BANK

2024 Annual Report

OUR STORY

2024 Was Filled With Monumental Milestones And Sizable Steps Forward In Our Mission.

In 2024, Bernie's Book Bank celebrated fifteen years since our founding in a small garage on Cod Fish Alley. Driven by a passionate collective of volunteers and partners, over the past fifteen years we have delivered over 28 million free, high-quality books into the hands and homes of children who need them.

This year we celebrated our 10-millionth book distributed in partnership with Chicago Public Schools (CPS). This key milestone was celebrated with a special distribution at Armstrong Elementary, a twelve-year distribution partner. Members from our newly formed National Board, Pedro Martinez, the CEO of CPS, Jane Fleming, CPS Literacy Director, and local news outlets were on-hand to celebrate this long-standing partnership and commitment to children's literacy.

Outside of Chicagoland we marked our official expansion into the Greater Milwaukee area - the first of what we hope will be many metropolitan-based Chapters across America. A five-year Randomized Control Trial in partnership with the Milwaukee Public Schools helped launch our Milwaukee expansion. The results? Statistically significant impact on student reading achievement, as well as positive impacts on related outcomes. Even better, the effect appears to grow over time. The results are impressive and reaffirm our commitment to why book ownership matters. We believe more books in more homes equals more reading, more dreaming, more doing, and this is proof.

Our people-powered mission of children's book ownership is growing stronger every day. In 2024, thanks to the Bernie's Book Bank community, we delivered 2,568,079 free, high-quality books to over 315,000 children.

Illiteracy is a preventable American crisis, and with your help, we're just getting started.

STORIES OF 2024

National Expansion

- April 25 - Marked the official kickoff of the Bernie's Book Bank Greater Milwaukee Chapter!
- In our first official year, we served 20,000 children across 60 schools with over 160,000 free, high-quality books to children who need them the most. We plan to serve all qualifying students in the following counties: Kenosha, Milwaukee, Ozaukee, Racine, Washington, and Waukesha.
- In true Bernie's Book Bank fashion, we set bold goals. We aspire to build a local operational facility with dedicated volunteers by the end of 2025, and ensure book distribution to all estimated 96,000 qualifying children in the Greater Milwaukee Area by the end of 2026.
- In October, Jenna Renno joined the team as Executive Director of Bernie's Book Bank Greater Milwaukee.
- This is a big step forward for Bernie's Book Bank as it looks to build upon its success in Chicagoland and expand nationally.

Measured Impact

- Generously funded by the Arnold Ventures, Dr. Geoffry Borman conducted a five-year Randomized Control Trial (RCT) from 2019-2023 to measure the efficacy of our program.
- The RCT was conducted in partnership with Milwaukee Public Schools (MPS), where 30 schools received free books from Bernie's Book Bank and 30 schools did not, acting as the control group.
- We are thrilled to share top-level results which concluded statistically significant impact on student achievement, as well as positive impact on related outcomes.
- Even better, the effect appears to grow over time.
- We look forward to sharing more results from this impactful study!

10,000,000 Books To CPS

- September 30 - Bernie's Book Bank distributed its 10-millionth book to Chicago Public Schools since 2009. CPS CEO Pedro Martinez, Founder Brian Floriani, Principal Otis Dunson, and Alderman Debra Silverstein spoke about the importance of early literacy and the significance of this milestone, which coincided with the final day of National Literacy Month.
- Principal Dunson showed his appreciation for Bernie's Book Bank in his opening remark: "There's nothing quite like the excitement of a child coming home with a new book, eager to read and share what they've learned. Bernie's Book Bank has truly enhanced the Armstrong community and we are deeply grateful for their ongoing support and partnership."
- Bernie's Book Bank has delivered books to more than 300,000 CPS students.

MEET KIM

When I was 10 years old, I moved to a new school in North Chicago called AJ Katzenmaier Academy. Our school received books from an organization called Bernie's Book Bank. All I really knew at the time was that these books were free for us to grab if we were interested. I waited my turn in line to receive my very own bag filled with books.

When we got back to our classroom, students were trading with each other and even donating books to the classroom library. I had never owned a book before this moment.

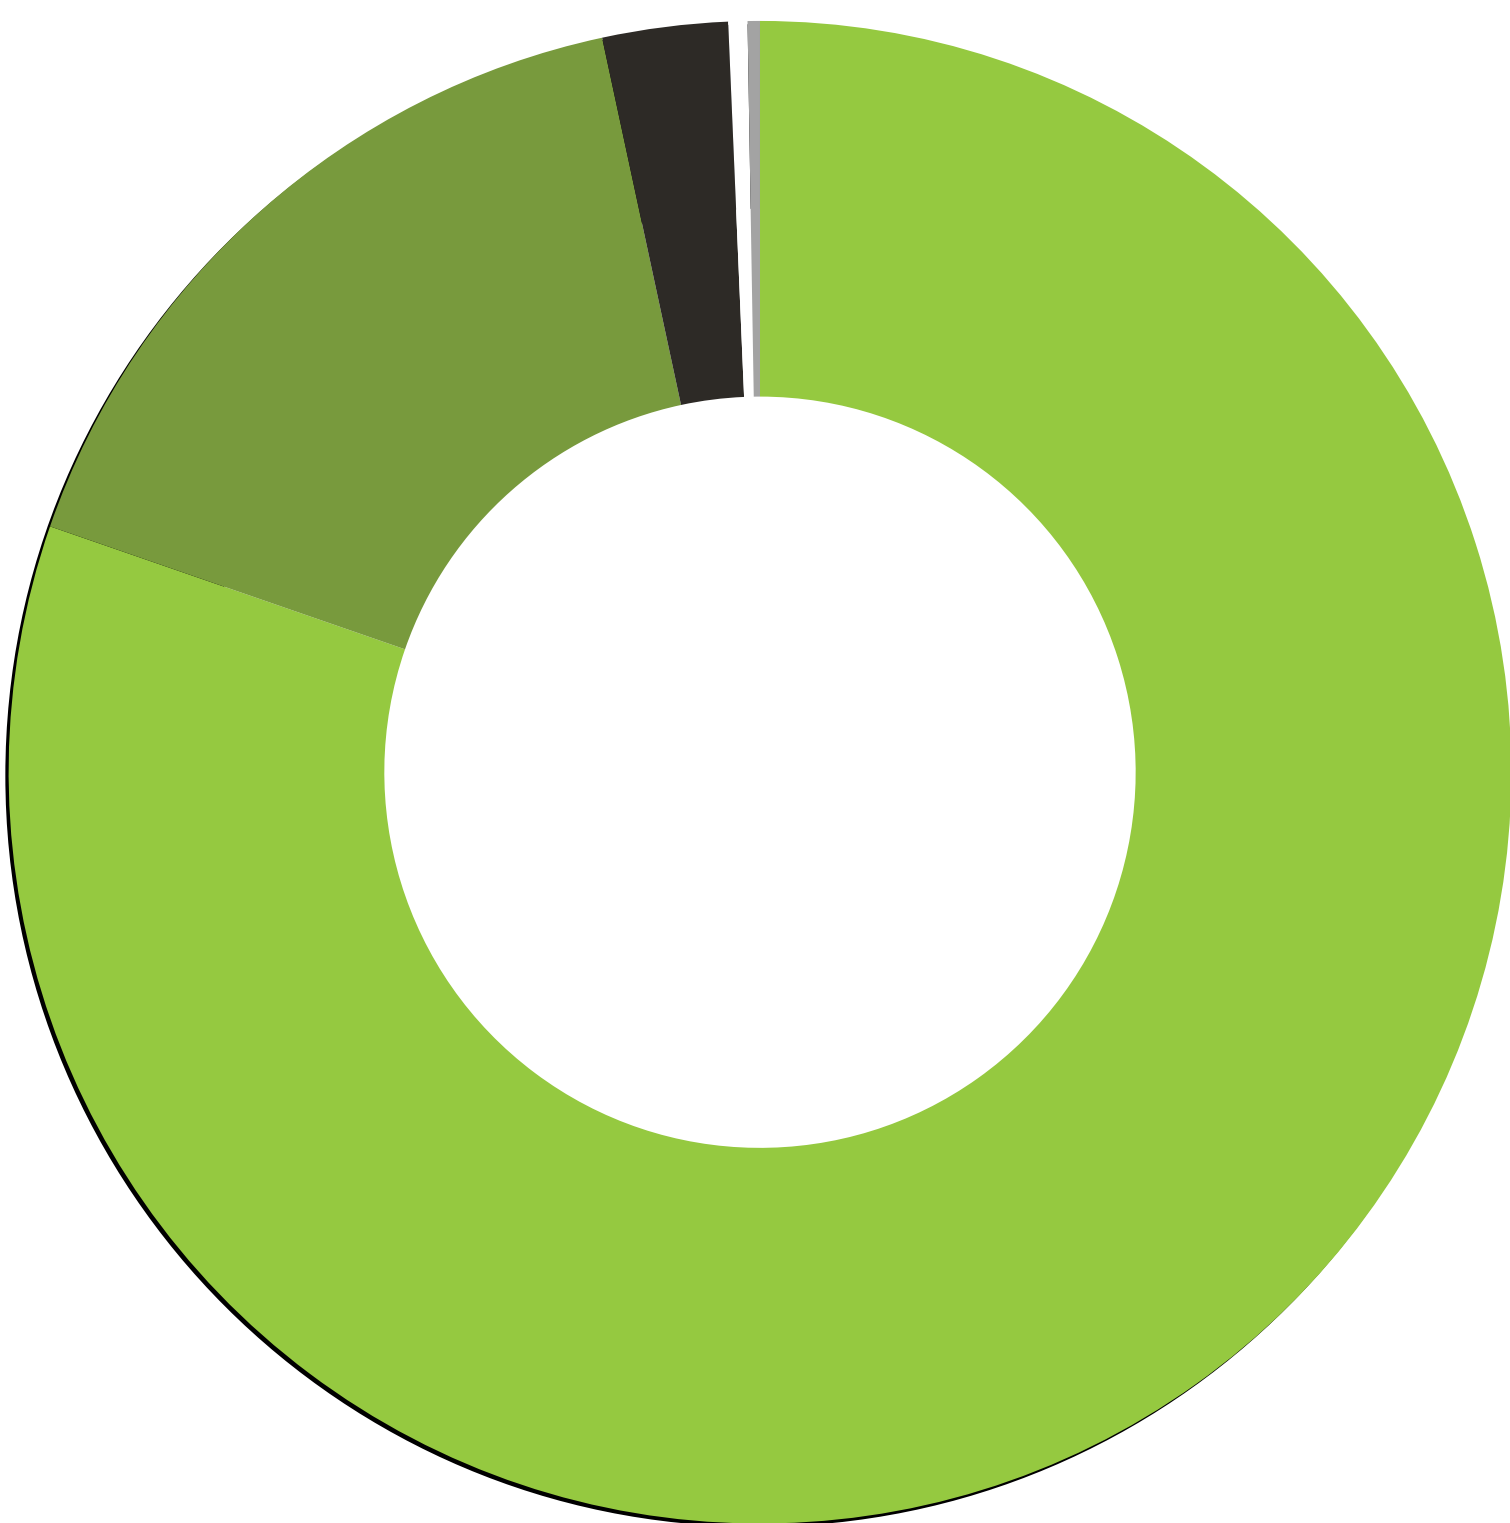

It was like tasting a new flavor of ice cream for the first time, my new favorite flavor. It was both unfamiliar and stunning to know people cared enough to get these books into our hands.

Kim R.

2024 NAEP RESULTS

With Author And Early Literacy Advocate, Maya Smart

The nation's report card is in for 2024, and the results aren't pretty.

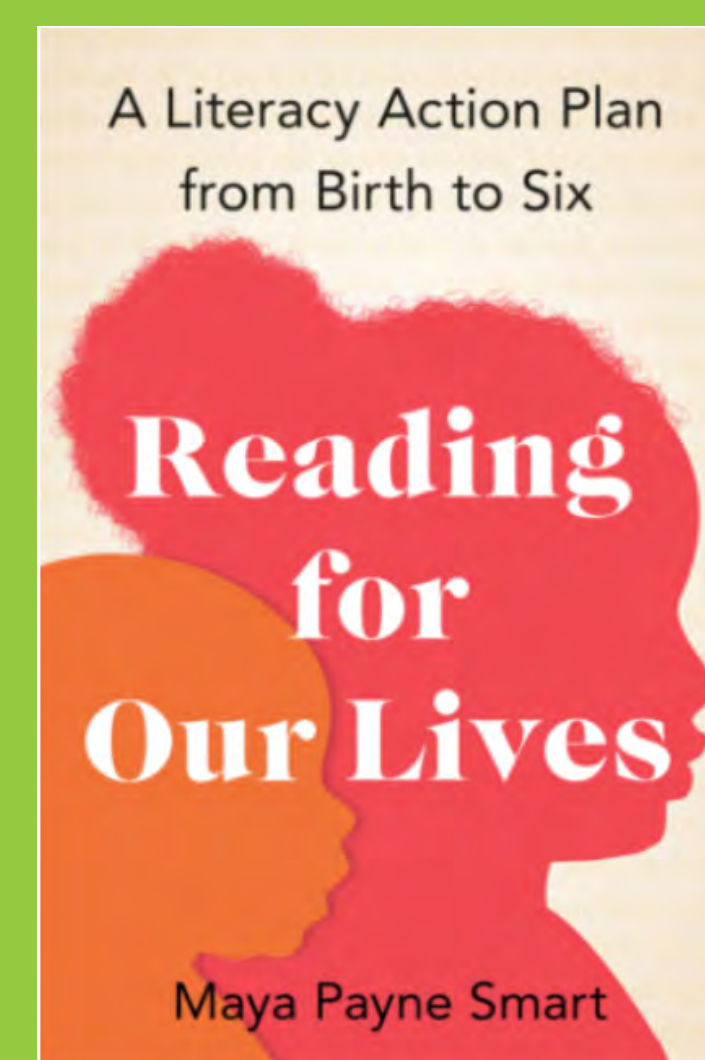

The latest National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading scores are deeply concerning. Too many students across the U.S. are struggling to read, and learning has not rebounded since the pandemic. Even more troubling, the gap between the strongest and weakest readers is growing.

Here are five things you need to know about the 2024 U.S. reading scores.

1. The NAEP Test Offers a National Snapshot of Reading Achievement
 - National reading scores remain below pre-pandemic levels across all tested grades.
 - Fourth- and eighth-grade scores dropped by two points from 2022.
 - Less than a third of students nationwide can read grade-level texts with understanding.
 - One-third of eighth graders scored “below basic” on reading skills—the greatest percentage to date. This means they struggle to identify main ideas or sequence events in a passage—skills critical for high school success.
2. If A Child Is Selected to Take NAEP, It Matters
 - The goal is to test a small, nationally representative group of students.
 - The results provide insight into how students in your district and state compare nationally. They also inform educational policy and resource allocation at the state and national levels.
 - NAEP scores don't just reflect what happens at a child's school and other local schools. Many external factors also play a role. Things like parents' education levels, reading and literacy practices at home, outside tutoring, and the experiences kids have that build their vocabularies all affect reading performance, not just classroom instruction.
3. NAEP Is the Only Apples-to-Apples Comparison Across States
 - Each state sets its own standards for what qualifies as “proficient” on state reading tests, which means results vary widely. NAEP provides the only national benchmark.
 - For Example:
 - In Wisconsin, recent state tests showed 51% of fourth graders were proficient in reading.
 - But NAEP told a different story. Only about 30% were deemed proficient by that nationally standardized measure.

4. Covid Learning Loss Lingers—But Gaps Were Widening Before
 - The 2024 NAEP results confirm what many educators feared: Learning hasn't recovered from school and home disruptions during the pandemic.
 - The biggest declines were among the lowest-performing students—those who were already struggling before Covid-19 hit.
 - The result? The reading gap is growing. In 2024, the difference in reading between the lowest- and highest-performing students widened to 100 points on NAEP's 500-point scale. This reading skill gap has been increasing for over a decade.
 - This is sometimes called the Matthew Effect: The (literacy) rich get richer, and the (literacy) poor get poorer.
5. Demographics Aren't Destiny—But Support Matters
 - NAEP scores show disparities by race and income level—but they don't prove that certain students are doomed to struggle.
 - Instead, they highlight opportunities for action. These gaps signal a lack of early literacy support and systemic interventions long before children start school.
 - Kids from lower-income backgrounds often have fewer books at home, less exposure to rich vocabulary in their daily lives, and less access to high-quality early education. All of this contributes to the gap, but they aren't inevitable. And all of it can be changed for individual children, and—with collective action—for all children.

Too many kids are struggling to read—and the gap is widening. But reading outcomes aren't set in stone. With family literacy practices, early intervention, high-quality instruction, and strong literacy advocacy, we can change the story.

OUR COMMITMENT REMAINS STRONG

For fifteen years, we have dedicated ourselves to putting free, high-quality books into the hands and homes of children who need them most. Today, thanks to our passionate community of corporate partners, investors, and volunteers, we have provided over 28 million books.

28 million books is commendable, but it is not enough. Literacy is not a luxury. The need is great and ever increasing. The urgency is pressing.

We take this personally, and will not stop until every child has books of their own at home.

Together we can work towards solving the children's literacy crisis in America.
